

Theological Education

SIM believes that developing the minds of local Christians will help the church to navigate issues that arise from its unique cultural context.

What is the Christian view of children, especially girls? What rights do they have?

How do I bury my mother in the Christian way without upsetting my ancestors?

What if a man becomes a Christian and he has four wives? Does he divorce three of them, or continue to care for each one and their children? Can this man become an elder in the church?

Such issues and more face the rapidly growing church in Asia, Africa and South America.

Scholars also help describe what God is calling the Church to be and do in light of the truth of the Bible.

Theological education is not only for seminary students or pastors; it is also for lay leaders, health workers, and anyone who desires to be a true disciple of Christ.

If you have a passion to train local believers and develop indigenous Christian scholarship, then we can place you in a Bible school, seminary, or theological education by extension programmes.

If you have skills as a teacher, librarian, school administrator, discipler or consultant, we can use you to play a vital part in strengthening the Church cross-culturally.

We would love to talk to you about possible placement in one of our theological institutions or theological education by extension (TEE) learning programmes.

To learn more about teaching theology in another culture, click here.

Opportunities

Professor of Church History/Historical Theology

Bible School Teacher

All Theological Education Opportunities

Projects

Fulani Bible School Building Fund

Disciple Making: Pastor's Training

All Theological Education Projects

Stories

Slowing the Brain Drain

Theological Education Strengthens God's Church